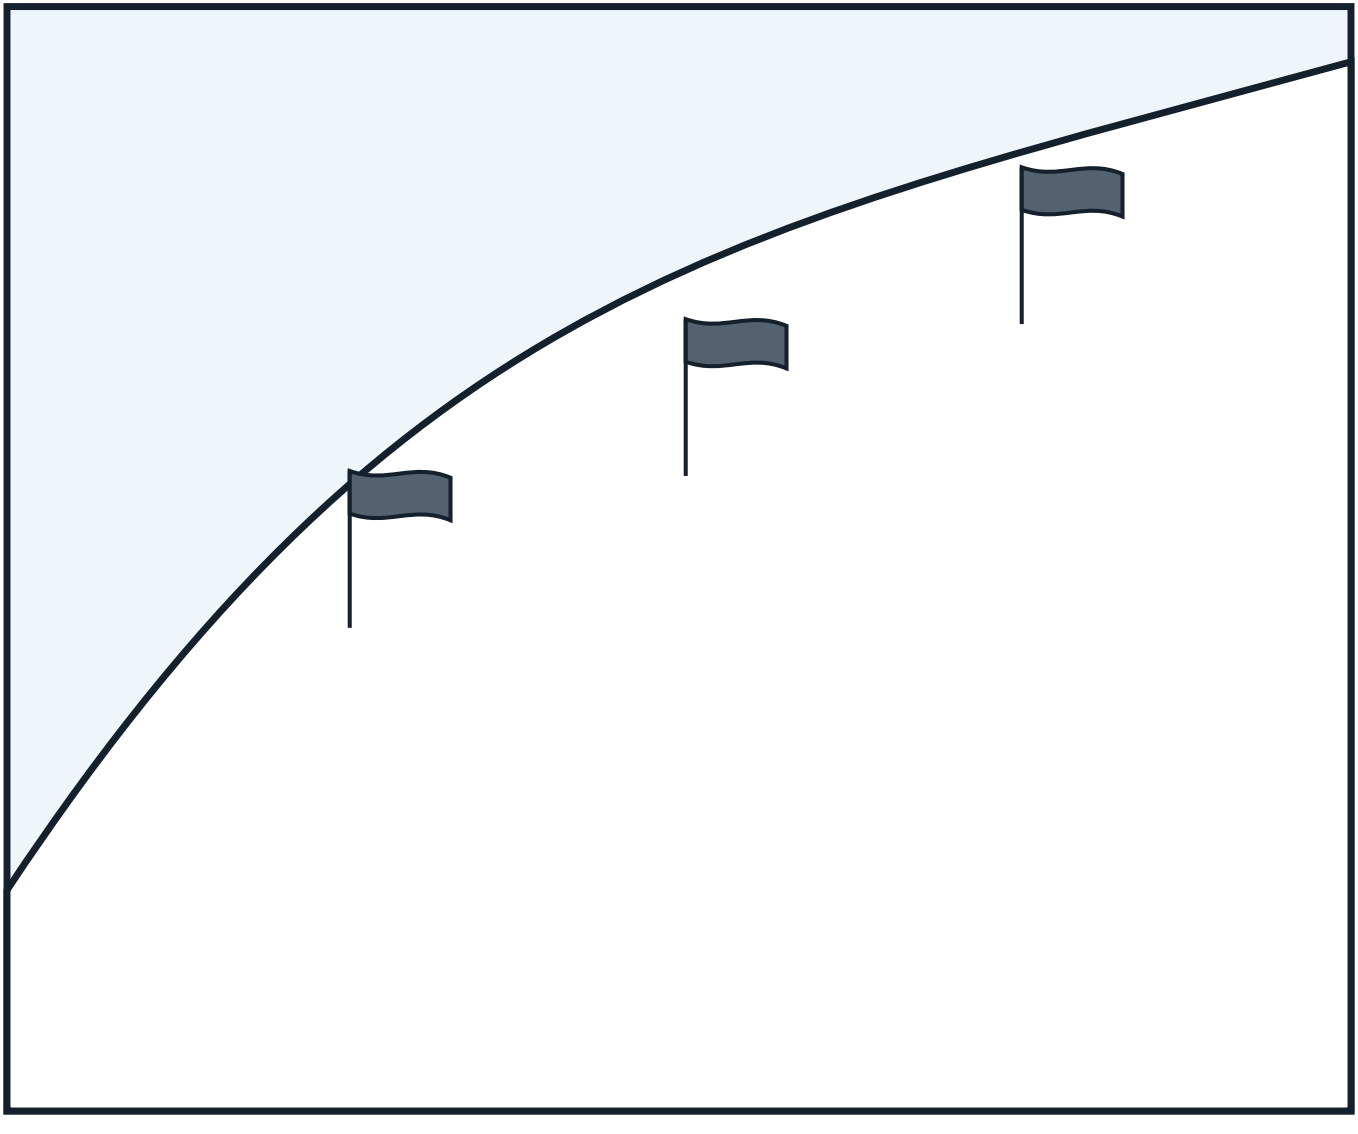
The Playing Area



Good to Know

Stone skimming's championship code is administered locally by the Easdale Island Community Development Group: naturally formed Easdale slate no more than three inches across, checked by the 'ring of truth', three skims of at least two bounces each, scored on cumulative distance to the quarry's 63-metre back wall. It is a stable local code dating from the event's 1983 founding and 1997 revival. No major dated rule change is carried for stone skimming.
