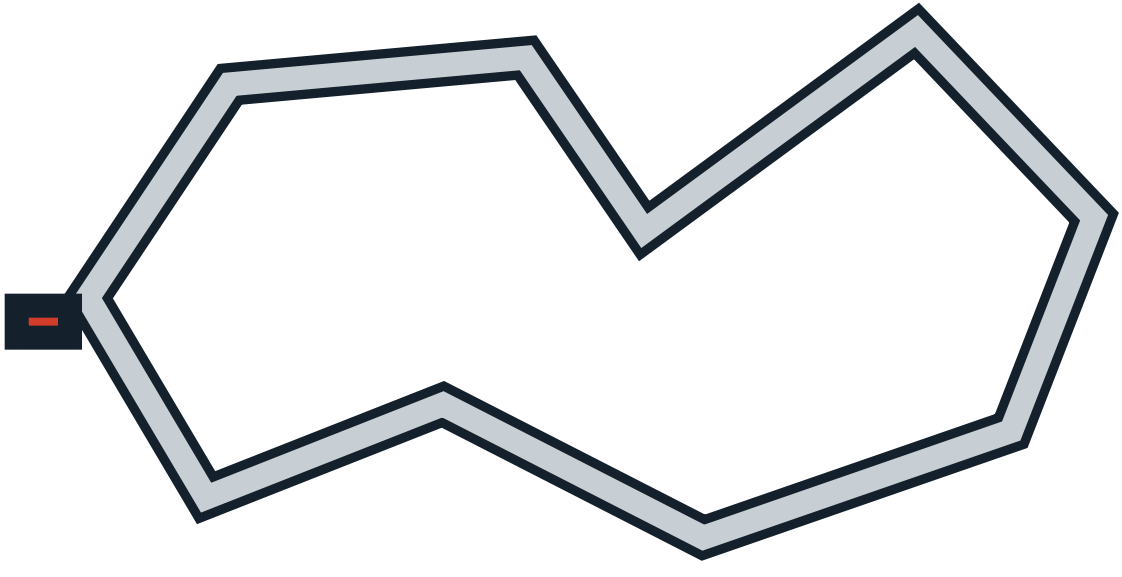
Meet MotoGP!

Top class of grand prix motorcycle racing.

Where It Is Played

Permanent paved road-racing circuits; grids are set by timed qualifying.

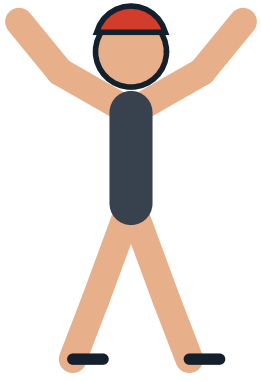


The Gear

A prototype Grand Prix motorcycle built to the class technical regulations — MotoGP up to 1,000 cc four-stroke — plus FIM-homologated helmet and leathers.

How It Starts

Beginners start in national championships and the FIM junior classes and progress through Moto3 and Moto2; a Grand Prix licence and a team entry are required for MotoGP.



How to Play

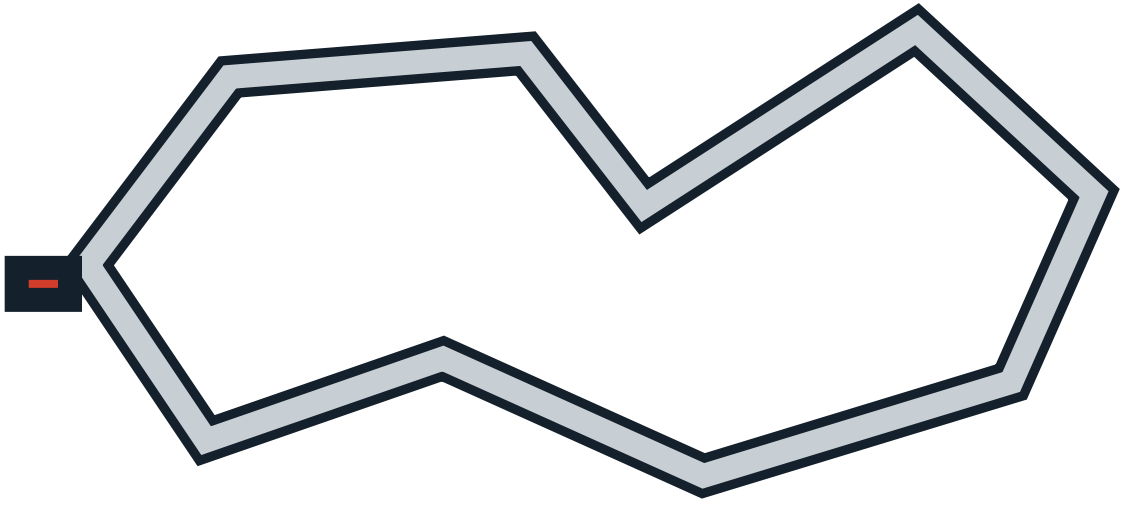
- Format: a Grand Prix weekend runs practice, qualifying (Q1/Q2) and a race in each of the three classes — MotoGP, Moto2 and Moto3; MotoGP weekends also include a Saturday Sprint.
- Winner: the race winner is the first rider to complete the race distance; the world champion is the rider with the most championship points at season's end.
- Scoring (main race): points go to the top 15 finishers, 25 for a win, then 20, 16, 13, 11, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1.
- Scoring (MotoGP Sprint): points go to the top 9 finishers, 12 for a win, then 9, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1.

More of the Game

- Technical (MotoGP class): maximum engine capacity is 1,000 cc, four-stroke, with a maximum bore of 81 mm, as set in section 2.4 of the regulations.
- Start procedure (2025, all classes): a rider who leaves or does not join the grid must start the warm-up lap from pit lane, retake their original grid position and serve a double long lap penalty.
- Regulation: the book is split into Sporting Regulations (section 1) and Technical Regulations (section 2), with separate technical rules for MotoGP (2.4), Moto2 (2.5) and Moto3 (2.6).
- Regulation (2025): Moto2 and Moto3 wildcard entries are capped at three per rider and three per team per season.

The Shape of a Match

Prototype motorcycle road racing over a set number of laps, decided by finishing order, with championships on cumulative points.



Moments That Shaped the Game

- 2023 — Sprint Races at Every Round: From 2023, every round carries a Saturday sprint — half the Grand Prix distance, half points (12-9-7-6-5-4-3-2-1), run a.
- 2016 — Unified Electronics (the Great Leveller): All bikes adopted a spec ECU and unified software (Magneti Marelli hardware, common software), restricting the factory c.

Rules That Changed the Game

- 2023 — Sprint Races at Every Round: Sprints doubled the weekend's racing and its jeopardy; they are now half the championship's points mass in aggregate drama, and th.
- 2016 — Unified Electronics (the Great Leveller): Spec electronics remain the base of MotoGP's competitiveness, and the concessions system that accompanied them is now the series' .
